This week's recommended read

This week's recommended read is called 'Little Glow' by Katie Sahota. This book is displayed in the schools as it celebrates the importance of introverts, while showcasing the beauty of light celebrations across a diverse culture. This book explores a variety of ways in which we celebrate light throughout the year such as events like Diwali, Hanukkah, Ramadan and the Chinese New Year all have such close ties with the lights. Watching all of these amazing celebrations out of the window, a small candle called 'Little Glow' wishes to be bolder and brighter. As a family all gather around Little Glow, it becomes clear that even the smallest of lights can have the biggest importance.
